World Fuel Services celebrates one-year anniversary of full-service operations in Australia

Australian success cements WFS global reach

31st, May 2018 - Australia – Leading fuel and aviation solutions provider World Fuel Services (WFS) has made its mark on the Australian market since launching its physical assets there one year ago. This has built significantly upon the services it has offered for several years previous and is boosted through the acquisition of ExxonMobil's aviation assets.

WFS has a long-standing global heritage, and its world-wide network spans more than 200 countries and 3,500 locations. The fuel and aviation provider works to support new models and growth across these. Recent developments in Europe have seen major airport expansions including the likes of TAG Farnborough Airport and Harrods FBO at Luton Airport in England, and Aéroport de Reims en Champagne and Épinal Mirecourt Aéroport in France.

In Australia, WFS provides services out of 17 sites and fuel at an additional 62 back-to-back locations. Having been known for several years primarily for flight operator solutions such as card payment and trip support, WFS has since extended its global capabilities to its Australian airport customers to provide fuel logistics, digital tools, technical support, payment platforms and innovative pricing models.

WFS works closely to provide service excellence and stay ahead of global process requirements. As such, WFS is a member of industry associations like Australia Airports Association, Regional Aviation Association of Australia and global best practice governance body JIG.

This year will see WFS' offering increase further with the launch of its latest innovation, a new iPad app, myWorld. The app consolidates fuel, flight planning, weather, airport search, and trip applications into a single user-friendly solution, providing another way for customers to consolidate the travel lifecycle.

World Fuel Services' Davin Magee, Director Aviation Market Development, commented, "We're proud of the way our services have grown and evolved with the Australian market. We have had a presence there for many years but since expanding to encompass our full solutions offering we have seen operations grow exponentially. WFS brings something different to aviation customers and discards the rigid solutions most fuel providers offer. By reworking traditional supply arrangements to provide quality, cost effective fuel to the end user, WFS is able to build a solution that looks and works exactly how the individual customer wants it to. This is what sets us apart and we endeavour to keep growing this in Australia and globally."
